

ICSI
Institute for Clinical
Systems Improvement

Craig Acomb, MS CEO

Craig Acomb is CEO of the Institute for Clinical Systems Improvement (ICSI). He previously served as its Chief Operating Officer (COO) and Chief Financial Officer (CFO) for the past four years. Prior to joining ICSI, Acomb served for three years as the Assistant Commissioner and COO for the Minnesota Department of Health (MDH), where he oversaw the operations and administration of a broad portfolio of the state's public health programs and the agency's 1,500 employees. His duties included organizational leadership, business direction, financial management and oversight, policy development, strategic and operational planning, workforce development, information technology, corporate communications and government relations.

Before that, Acomb was MDH's Chief Financial Officer and oversaw the agency's $500 million budget, which included leading budget negotiations during the passage of Minnesota's 2008 landmark health reform legislation that created the Statewide Health Improvement Program (SHIP).

Acomb serves on the boards of MN Community Measurement, NRHI and the National Multiple Sclerosis Society. He holds a master's degree in biology from the University of Minnesota.