

- President of the Healthcare Collaborative of Greater Columbus, a non-profit, public-private partnership that serves as a catalyst, convener, and coordinator of healthcare transformation & learning in Greater Columbus
- Leadership roles in health services administration since 1985 in Columbus, Nashville and Pittsburgh
- Diverse experience includes: building collaborative solutions, business development, health information technology, managed care administration, physician practice management, and social entrepreneurship
- Serves on the Health Policy Institute of Ohio's Board of Directors, Co-chair of the Ohio Patient-Centered Primary Care Collaborative, adjunct instructor with the School of Health and Rehabilitation Sciences at The Ohio State University.
- Speaks frequently about key trends in healthcare and the value of public-private partnerships
- Native of Columbus Ohio, undergraduate degree in Health Services Administration and Master of Business Administration from Franklin University. Honorable discharge from the United States Army.